MEET GINO ROSARIA

billboard

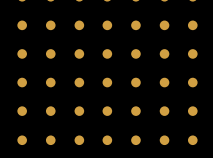

Gino Rosaria, born and raised in Curaçao, developed an interest in music at an early age. Growing up on a culturally diverse island, Gino learned to speak four languages fluently. The influence of the many cultures allowed him to learn and play different kinds of music, which became a part of his identity. Later on, he grew to enjoy Jazz, Latin, and Classical music the most. Gino started performing regularly in his early teens.

Gino moved to the US in 2003 to study music under the world-renowned Daisy De Luca Jaffe. In 2009, he graduated with a Master's in Classical Music Performance. Gino then started taking private Jazz lessons with Jazz pianist David Shelander, who studied with Bill Evans during his time in the US. Gino went on to win many competitions and appeared on national TV and radio stations performing solo, chamber, and with orchestra. Today, Gino performs and does studio work regularly with some of the best musicians, including award-winning artists such as violinist Karen Briggs, Jazz clarinet player Tim Laughlin, flutist Kim Scott, jazz guitarist Adam Hawley, and flutist Althea Rene.

In 2016, Gino started a new project called Groove Symphony where he released all original music inspired by his newborn Simon. In 2017, Gino's Groove Symphony project won an award for Best Funk/Fusion EP from the Akademia in Los Angeles. Today, Gino travels as an educator teaching master classes, as a producer producing music for clients worldwide, as a sideman/musical director for many national acts, and as a performing artist continuously writing and performing original music. Gino also holds an artist-in-residence position at a mega-church in Pensacola, FL.

Gino released his first contemporary jazz album in the summer of 2019. He features several heavy hitters on that album, such as Marcus Anderson, Althea Rene, Elan Trotman, Adam Hawley, and more. His radio single "Night Groove" made it onto the billboard within the first week! The single made it onto the top 30 on most of the contemporary jazz charts. "My goals are to continue giving virtuoso piano performances in Jazz and Classical music..." says Gino. His Curaçao roots are heard throughout his music, and Gino is very proud.
